BANK PAILURES.

The North River Bank has been compelled to close its doors under the pressure of the present financial crisis. A legend entrance declares that the bank is closed "temporarily." But even the temporary closing of a bank in this stringency of money is greatly to be regretted. How disastrously a bank failure acts, and is felt to act, at such a crisis appears clearly enough from the way, in which several banks went down into their vaults to come to the rescue of a bank in peril.
